Raymond Chautauqua Well Attended

Raymond's four day Chautauqua concluded on Tuesday night with the presentation of the popular comedy "Tommy." This play which was presented here some two or three months ago by the Maude Henderson Co., was well received and enjoyed by all who saw it.

Friday evening witnessed the presentation of the comedy "Give and Take." An enjoyable musical program was put on Saturday afternoon by the McShane Concert Co. and they also furnished a splendid prelude at night to the lecture by Capt. J. Hedley, British Air Ace on Aviation its development and its possibilities.

On Monday, Miss Lucille Elmore and Co., put on a splendid prelude to the lecture by C. H. Platteau on "The Old Town in a New World." This lecture was well received and was full of optimism regarding present day civilization and its problems.

Monday night, was acclaimed by many as the outstanding program of the entire Chautauqua when the Lucille Elmore Revue put on a two hour program that was full and brimming over with comedy, wit, jazz and classical music. From the opening number "Light Cavalry" to the audience never had a dull moment the singing of "God Save the King" the audience never had a dull moment. The instrumentalists were all very capable and offered some splendid solos, and Miss Elmore proved herself an entertainer par excellence in singing, reading and mysticism.

Miss O'Brien, the Superintendent, kept things moving smoothly and made many friends while here, who will certainly welcome her return should that occur in the chautauqua program.

George Clemenceau, well known as the "Tiger" of France, and strong man of that country during the world war, died Sunday at the age of 88 years. This is the second French leader to go within a few months.

Pneumonia being the cause of her death.

Field Man Is Located Here

Local farmers who are going into the beef feeding business this winter have received some direct aid from the Department of Agriculture at Edmonton, in the appointment of John Wilson, of Inisfail, to act as field man and supervise the feeding in Raymond and district.

Mr. Wilson has been engaged in finishing market beef for 25 years past and the local farmers are fortunate indeed and will no doubt profit greatly by the wealth of experience he brings with him.

He has already visited the 8 or 10 feed lots throughout the district and well pleased with the prospects. He advises that the cattle be started on a small ration of grain NOW. Don't wait, but feed a little grain throughout the entire winter if you want first-class beef.

The Livestock Co-op. had much to do with the getting of a field man here, and feeders should remember that he is here to serve them, and help them in the solution of their feeding problems.

PETITION OF GROWERS PLEDGING 6000 ACRES BRINGS QUICK ACTION

Increase Acreage to 8,000 Acres, and We'll Guarantee you a Factory in 1930, Declares Colonization Manager in Response to Delegation Which Waited on Him Saturday—Matters of Financing and Financing Discussed With Enthusiastic Growers.

Lethbridge Herald

I'll go this far—I'll guarantee you a factory!

This was the declaration made by James Pike, Lethbridge Northern colonization manager, on Saturday, replying to a delegation from the Lethbridge Northern Beet Growers' association, which waited upon him in his offices on Eight street.

The delegation, made up of representatives from Monarch, Commerce, Iron Springs and Picture Butte areas, had come to substantiate its claim for a sugar factory. For weeks the association had been organizing the territory, holding meetings, signing up acreage and systematically preparing its case for a factory on the Lethbridge Northern.

Petition Presented

The president of the association, Howard Finley of Picture Butte laid before Mr. Pike a petition pledging 3000 acres. "We want to know," said Mr. Finley, "just how far the colonization department will go toward helping us get a factory. Raymond has about reached capacity and we must have some assurance that our beets will be taken care of. Otherwise, well we can't grow beets, that's obvious." There was a general murmur of approval from the other members of the delegation.

Without hesitation, Mr. Pike made his declaration—"The colonization department," he said, "will go just as far as the project farmers themselves. You have 6000 acres in this petition. You have had a year to judge the possibilities of beets as a crop. I'll go this far—I'll guarantee you a factory for 1930 if you will bring me a pledge of 8000 acres of beets."

ROTARY CULTIVATOR MAY BE GREAT BOON TO WESTERN CANADIAN FARMERS

The interest of the farmers of western Canada, have been challenged of late years through several inventions which have helped to lessen the labor. Foremost amongst these is an effective piece of machinery, which J. C. Egan has invented. This machine is known as the Rotary Cultivator.

This machine has been demonstrated on the farms of Isaac Layercraft of High River and S. E. Elves, of Cayley district and at both places the demonstrations were witnessed by a large number of representative farmers who felt that a machine of this nature was what they were seeking for and were very favorably impressed with its work. They were unanimous in their opinions as to its efficiency in the destruction of weeds and preparing the seed bed, as well as time and labor saver. Opinion was divided as to consequent soil drifting, some fearing that the very thoroughness of the work would create a tendency to drifting in lighter soil, while other saw no menace in that respect.

This power driven Spiral Rotary Cultivator is the result of years of experimenting, discarding and perfecting. The present form of construction from practical farmers of the three prairie provinces. Not only has Mr. Egan acted upon and combined the cultivator, but he has sought to eliminate the obvious weaknesses of the old fashioned cultivating equipment, which at its best only partially prepared the seed bed.

The Rotary Cultivator with its wide range and power, overcomes rocks and heavy soil obstructions with perfect ease.

Most important to the farmers is that any heavy surface mulch is mixed thoroughly through the soil to great depth and from top to bottom. This complete pulverizing of stubble

FAREWELL FOR HOWARD RASMUSSEN

A very enjoyable farewell was held for Howard Rasmussen in the 2nd Ward Chapel Sunday evening after the regular meeting. Due to Chautauqua it was impossible to find an open week night for a social and dance, and consequently a program of music and speeches was given Sunday evening.

The Male Chorus under the leadership of Wm. Stone rendered two numbers; A Piano Solo was rendered by Emma Dahl; a Saxophone Solo by Hyrum Fromm; Vocal Solo by Miss Laura McLean; a speech by Mrs. McBride, grandmother of Howard; Talk by C. E. Alfred; also Howard Rasmussen and Bishop James H. Walker.

The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all and will leave a great many happy remembrances with Howard in his field of labor.

He left on Tuesday morning for Salt Lake City to attend the Mission School following which he will proceed to his field of labor.

The gravel drive continues and the persistence of the faithful few has the gravel now just about to the Bank of Montreal.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

(Edson R. Waite)

J. F. Owens, Vice President and General manager of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company, says:

That Newspaper Advertising is the shortest road to maximum business, therefore it is the shortest way to lowest cost to those whom we serve.

Through it we save human life by excessive drudgery and to save time and money.

Through it we save human life by setting forth dangers existing from certain situations beyond control of an electric service company.

Through it we emphasize to the people what cooperative effort can do for the progress of the community.

Through it we help to stimulate the "boosting" spirit of the community by "boosting" civic movements ourselves.

Through it we teach how to get the most out of the service we render and assist in promoting effective and economical use of that service.

Through it we tell the public that every individual we are privileged to serve has a right to fair and courteous treatment from us at all times.

This has a beneficial influence upon our own organization, being an added reminder of what is expected from our members in their dealings with the public.

and trash, including rough stubble or annual growth of noxious weeds, etc. of immense value to the fertility of the soil and the evenness of crop. It is recognized that the old fashioned plough does an imperfect job. It turns the soil upside down and covers the trash, but the layer of trash or stubble between the disturbed upper soil and solid ground beneath eats of normal ground moisture. Consequently the top soil dries out before moisture connection can be established. This is especially true of spring ploughing when hot winds dry top soil speedily, producing an uneven crop. But the Rotary pulverizes stubble, weed, and trash and immediately connects with ground moisture is established.

The practice of burning off stubble and stacks, etc., loses to the soil millions of dollars in valuable vegetable fertilizer. While these cannot be worked into the soil by ordinary equipment the Rotary eats them up.

Not only does this machine do this thorough job in ploughing, but it takes the place of the disc and barrow, and is a once-over machine. It prepares the seed bed in one operation, where as by the old methods a good seed bed requires from three to seven operations.

By combing such a variety of farm equipment, it introduces an epoch of economy in farming. It saves time, does the work more thoroughly, increases yields by returning to the soil all possible vegetable fertilizer, retains normal moisture connection and lowers the cost of production.—Market Examiner.

Notes from the A.C.

The graduates of the Raymond School were very proud when they learned that five of their classmates are continuing in Agriculture at Olds where they are taking the third year course. They are, Hugh McFadden, Ray Johanson, who by the way holds the position of "House President" in the dormitory, Clyde Shields, Edward Peterson, and Russell Boyden.

The graduates will also be pleased to learn that Natrona King who took her two-in-one course here last year, is attending the University of Alberta. She is taking her degree in Household Economics.

The staff and students are holding a theatre party on Friday evening, at the Capitol Theatre. "If you want to know how we can sing and grow, be sure to go to the very first show."

There was approximately seventy-five dollars worth of Chautauqua tickets sold amongst the Staff and Students.

Miss Stevenson, who represents the Singer Sewing Machine Co. of Winnipeg, was a visitor to the School last week. Miss Stevenson will be returning in January when she will conduct a short course on the use of attachments of the sewing machine.

Mr. Wilson of Inisfail, Alberta, who is with the Department of Agriculture was with us for a day last week. Mr. Wilson is in charge of the promotion work in connection with cattle feeding in the sugar-beet area.

The Second year boys will be taken into Lethbridge on Saturday where they will spend the day at the Dominion Experimental Farm.

The last shipment of hogs from the School Farm graded one hundred percent selects. These were pure bred Tamworths.

A Holt Caterpillar tractor has been secured for the Engineering Department and is causing considerable interest amongst the boys.

The boys will make a field trip to the Sugar-factory on Friday of this week. This annual visit to the factory is always a great interest as well as being very instructive.

In the Domestic Science Department, the Christmas cakes are in the making. Each second year girl is making and decorating a cake which they take home for Christmas. An accurate account of the cost of the cakes is kept, and each girl purchases her cake at cost.

Our enrollment is now ninety-three and we still know of a few others who are intending to register in the very near future.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A significant point in the resolution which was passed by the National Exhibit Managers Association, at its recent annual convention, disapproving the use of liquor by exhibitors attending conventions, was that it stated, "The practice is contrary to good business ethics and tends to discourage attendance by men who could profit by and contribute to the convention." Apparently good business ethics are too strongly entrenched to submit to the few who flout the law.

The following bit of advice from a father to his son, was printed recently in the Alabama Times, seems worthy of passing on without further comment: "My boy," he said, "treat every body with politeness, even those who are rude to you. For remember that you show courtesy to others not because they are gentlemen, but because you are one."

In a talk before Illinois bankers and land appraisers, H. W. Merrill dean of the college of Agriculture of the University of Illinois, stated that American agriculture is the other natives of paucity or better education and training for farmers. In the later might also be found a good way to farm relief.

Henry Ford's recent statement, "Anyone who spends time with children is distinctly better for it," should give encouragement to both parents and school teachers. The point is, however, also to see to it that the children are the better for it.

One doesn't need to be a member of a Christmas Club to save a little each week, but it's a help. The value of a flexible tariff depends very much on who does the flexing.

"Bringing in the Boar's Head"

The Yuletide Festival inaugurated last year at Victoria will be repeated on a still more brilliant scale this coming Christmas, according to information from Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters. Those who were at the Empress Hotel last Christmas still remember the thrill that swept through the great hall when the boar's head was brought in, borne aloft on a platter by a chef in Elizabethan costume, preceded by a jester in cap and bells and followed with medieval pomp by stewards and minstrels. They still recollect the dragging in of the Yule Log, the wassailers, the exquisite old Nativity Play, the scenes from Dickens, the singing of carols outside the Parliament Buildings, led by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province in person. They call to mind a week of merriment and good cheer which as some one happily described it, was peopled with reliving old ghosts of the Christmas past. All these things will be seen again when the Festival starts Sunday December 22 and is continued until December 30.

A fortnight later, with its locale also at the Empress Hotel, there will be held the Sea-Nude Festival, January 15-18. Held at Vancouver last January, it will repeat many of the popular features then heard, including "The Order of Good Cheer", incorporating old French sea songs of the time of Champlain; "Bound for the Rio Grande," Frederick William Wallace's Sea-Chanty Ballad Opera. There will also be many new attractions with first-class singers and choirs, the whole under the musical direction of Harold Eustace Key.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

Are you going to the Annual Meeting of the R.A.A.A. on Monday evening? If you don't, will you be gentle man enough to keep quiet regarding the election of officers and the program mapped out for the coming year?

It is a common occurrence that when a meeting of this kind is called there will be from ten to twenty people present to hear the reports and elect officers for the coming year, and the result is, and quite naturally, that the state of officers and executive are chosen from those present, and they go ahead and map out the program for the year, and after this is done, and public support is needed, people start kicking and airing their views about this, that and the other, and telling how "I would do it," and they don't even have interest enough to attend a meeting and lend their "mighty" brain to the problem.

It is always discouraging and a thankless position to father and foster amateur sport, and when a meeting is called and only ten or twelve present to plan and arrange for hockey, cutting, basketball, skating, baseball, softball, horseshoe, etc., well, we say hats off to the men who carry on and provide our fun for us.

For once, let's change all this. Let's turn out Monday in sufficient numbers to choose the best people for the jobs, and to spread the work around so that no one will be worked to death and then watch us all enjoy sport.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

"Did you ever stop to think that the solution of the problems of merchandising, community building, buying at home, and all other similar problems peculiar to the average small city and town in this country lies with the independent retailers?"

"We hear much complaint about the chain store, the disloyalty of those who buy out-of-town, the ever-increasing stagnation of local merchandising, etc., but we seldom stop to think that those of us who are known as independent retailers, taking pride in calling ourselves executives, are lacking in knowledge of really modern and aggressive business methods. Too often we allow ourselves to be led by our businesses, drifting along the lines of least resistance, rather than leading our business by aggressive methods. We spend too much time which should be given to intensive study of trade organs, experiences of successful executives, research findings, etc., in telling the world that business has gone to the dogs."

"In this great go-getting America what a wealth of technical education there is available to us in trade papers and special research services for all lines of business! That executive who stops to seek out the results of the experiences of others is the most successful. There is nothing wrong with business except that the day has come when obsolete business methods will no longer get us by. The chain store which so many independent retailers deride, is using modern methods and paying little heed to those of us who howl."

"Business must begin to realize that a new day is here, bringing with it the ultimatum that those who stick with old methods and old sentiments must fall by the wayside. LIKE THE IMMORTAL LINCOLN, WE MUST STUDY AND PREPARE OURSELVES AND OUR CHANCES WILL COME OFTEN."

"FEWER AND BETTER FARM PEOPLE"

This is a slogan suggested by Prof. Walter Burr of the University of Missouri in a recent publication, "Small Towns."

Discussing the drift from farm to city, Prof. Burr condemns the idea, held by a large section of the public that the progressive, thinking people will not stay on the farms, but migration, and thinks it is a good thing for the United States. But he declares vigorously that the migration doesn't include all the cream; it takes as many or more of the incompetent who are unable to make the grade in the individualistic vocation of farming.

The New York Times takes up Prof. Burr's thought and says:

Once it is established that the exodus to the city is not always a drain but often a good riddance, it is plain why our author, is complacent about the process. He goes further and suggests a slogan, "Fewer and better farm people." This position is based only in part on the fact, by this time getting itself widely recognized, that with improved farming methods a nation can be fed by fewer farmers. Improved methods and machines call for the exercise of higher talents than were needed under a more primitive agricultural economy. They also call for more capital. Professor Burr has very little use for ancient notions about men and land. Today, he says there is no more reason for putting the poor man on the land than there is for putting him in charge of a grocery store or a bank. Farming is taking on more and more the character of a business. As such it makes its appeal to the young. Men have been known to come back from college and join Dad in running the 'business' of the farm.

It used to be the popular conception among urban dwellers that only "Rubes" would remain in the country side. That notion is passing. Here in Southern Alberta today many of the shrewdest, most progressive men are farmers and ranchers. We have seen for ourselves the weeding-out process. We have seen the advances made in business of farming, and we quite agree with Prof. Burr. The misfit has no more chance to make good in agriculture today than he has in any other line of business. This does not mean that there are no misfits in farming; we find them there as everywhere. But the farmer of today is a well read, travelled person, quite able to take his place in the company of his city neighbors, and to do his part in carrying on the business of the community.—Lethbridge Herald.

HOW RED CROSS DOLLARS ARE MADE

There is generally a special story attaching to the money that finds its way to the Headquarters of the Red Cross Society. The large donation often has a most interesting history, and represents the united effort for weeks and months, or even the whole year of the faithful and patient Red Cross Workers in some small sewing group that meets for the purpose of working for the great fall event—the Bazaar.

Office records show many remarkable achievements along this line and the small town, disdained by the headless passerby is often able to put to the type that counts.

Sums ranging from one hundred dollars up, have been received at Headquarters, because several busy women share the larger cities, in real service and who can accomplish so much for other people's needy children as the woman who has her hands full? have schemed, and planned after a really splendid entertainment, which in its turn followed a truly excellent sale of work.

Gift-sales, auctions, all such come to the Red Cross net, when the local committee goes a fishing. Tag Days and membership drives that are representative of much toll on the part of self-sacrificing workers, all add their quota to Red Cross funds.

The appeal of the crippled child and other work finds a ready response in most hearts, and poor indeed is that district that cannot do something once a year.

AIR AND VENTILATION

It has long been known that air can be polluted in such a manner as to be injurious. For many years it was thought that this pollution was due to an excess of carbonic acid gas, but it is now understood that, in an ordinary occupied room, the amount of this gas is not harmful, nor is there a sufficient reduction of oxygen brought about to account for the effects of bad air.

In the early years of this century, it was proven by experiments that the symptoms caused by living in so-called bad or vitiated air are due to the temperature of the air, its moisture and its stillness. In other words, conditions of the air which do not favour the loss of heat from the body are the conditions which caused the ill-effects of bad air. The body is constantly generating heat and if the person is to be comfortable and fit, the surplus heat must be got rid of. The skin is the means of getting rid of excessive body heat.

When the body is surrounded by hot, humid, still air, it is difficult or impossible for the skin to eliminate as it should, and, as a result, there is discomfort, and, later, if the condition persists, there will be headache, shortness of breath, and an increased pulse rate and temperature.

We know, from common experience how much more comfortable we are on the warm day when there is a breeze as compared with the way we feel when the day is hot and still.

To secure comfort and fitness, we should live in an atmosphere of cool air which is in gentle motion, and the object of ventilation is to maintain such an atmosphere. This can usually be accomplished in a satisfactory way by having a thermometer in the room and by opening the window. A considerable amount of the ill-health that occurs in winter is due to the lowered efficiency of the body which follows upon living and working in overheated places. The body is bound up by cool air and upset by overheated still air.

THE RED DEER TRAINING SCHOOL

(By Edna Kells)

Sunshine floods the rooms of the Provincial Training School at Red Deer, creeping into every nook and corner as if anxious to lighten the way for those unfortunate ones whose lives are not as others live. It smiles on the beautiful gardens and they respond, putting forth a special effort to create a pleasant atmosphere for the boarders in the school, 155 in number.

They are a happy lot, in spite of handicaps, for there they enjoy equal status, which is not possible in their own homes. Sometimes they go to spend a holiday with their families, but they are always glad to get back to the school. Last summer a camp was established at Sylvan Lake, and the boarders were taken for an outing which they enjoyed immensely. Dr. W. J. McAllister, the medical superintendent, was anxious that they should have this experience. It means a great deal to them to have an opportunity to get the mental complex of agreeable experiences, he says. It to make them satisfied. And so he arranged little outings from time to time, for those who are able to go under supervision, from the school. It gives them food for thought and help; may be a hike, or a visit to the fair; attendance at church in town, or a moving picture show; or perhaps they are taken to Chautauqua. No matter where, they enjoy the treat and return home more contented.

But all is not play at the school. Parents send their children realizing that there, if anywhere, they can have training that will make them useful in later years training they cannot get in public school where they are in competition with others of normal mentality. Thirty per cent of the children are capable of being trained, and that which is given them not only tends to develop their mentality, but to overcome awkwardness of movement. Sense and vocational training, regular hours proper food, exercises and recreation, all play their part in this good work.

The girls have a vocational training teacher, but at present there are not a sufficient number of high grade boys in the school to warrant the engagement of a special teacher for them. The only training they get is that which they receive from the men who supervise their field work.

Study and recreation are nicely blended, school work being carried on under a regular schedule adapted to the mentality of the student. Some clever with their fingers than with books and learn to do fine hand work more readily than they take to study.

Recreation is provided for winter and summer. Church services, and picture shows are held in the gymnasium where physical drill is conducted in winter and in bad weather in summer.

N. C. Peterson and R. S. Orgill spent part of last week in Edmonton as delegates to the Municipal convention. They represented Sugar City Municipality.

mer. Tennis, bowling green, baseball, football, and basketball grounds, a playground for the smaller children and a skating rink for winter, are all available.

The children appreciate kindness and respond to kindness in every instance, says Dr. McAllister. They like to be encouraged and noticed. While they do not understand ill treatment, they naturally resent it. Every child in the school, possessed of the slightest mispleasure reflected in their faces when they greet him, gives the impression that they always receive kindness at his hands.

The building is carefully planned with a view to giving the best service conditions necessitate. A new wing under construction, will provide better school rooms for sense and vocational training, and additional dormitory space. A dormitory being built outside for the big boys will take them out of the main building and give them an opportunity for the admission of others of more tender years.

West of the Great Lakes

THE growth of the Bank of Montreal has closely coincided with the gradual development of Canada from a small colony to a great Dominion. In the Bank's westward advance to the Pacific Coast, one of the important links in its trans-continental chain of Branches was formed in 1873 at Winnipeg, when the Bank opened its first Branch west of the Great Lakes.

This forward step, taken seven years before railway communication was opened up between Montreal and Winnipeg, made available to the incoming population on the prairies the stabilizing co-operation of a strong, conservative and at the same time energetic financial institution.

Of the Bank's 667 Branches, 14 are in Winnipeg and 188 in the Prairie Provinces.
